“ This has to be the hardest thing I will ever go through. I never got the chance to say goodbye and how very much I loved you and to just hold you one more time. That was all taken from me. If I had know that when I left you at home on Friday that you were leaving before I got home ,I would had stayed and had more time with you. Just to talk ,eat just hang out.That wasn't meant to be.all I know is you left with your boyfriend and never came home alive. No parent should ever get a phone call from a detective and have to be told your daughter is deceased. Im really angry I couldn't protect you! No call from the boyfriend, no explanation as to what happened, all I can do is read into what happened in my opinion. Yes, I'm a very bitter upset mother grieving the loss of my child and still without explanation. The only solice I get from this is that she is now hand in hand with her Daddy. I will never in my entire life ever understand or accept the finality of my child's death. I will get answers and bring peace for my sweet Amberah. She was my heart, my life. All i lived for was my sweet baby girl.I miss you every second of every single day. I love you Amberah Hoffman
