“ When a great tree falls in the woods, the opening in the canopy is glaringly obvious. The new clearing feels oddly unsettling for a very long time, and there is always a surprise at just how much shade the old tree was supporting.

Such it will be with our dear friend Al. We will all miss his love and support, his constancy, his fire for Church missions. He clothed himself in Grace and humility, and wisdom.

I treasure his service; to God, his country, his family, and our Church. His was a life well-lived; his ending, a battle fought with surpassing grace; and his unfailing devotion to his wife, Virginia, a beacon and lesson to us all. We will all miss him dearly.
