“ I met Alison at Washington Irving Middle school and continued to be with her through out high school n even after. We even did beach week together senior yr at her aunts condo in ocean city. She use to always pick me up in her cool cars. I remember her purple tracker n the Nissan 300 with the T tops. When she told me she had a bike I wasn't shocked at all. Last time I spoke to her she helped me realize a lot about my mom n I. She helped me view a few things differently then I did.

Everytime I saw her she gave the best hugs n kisses on the cheek! Always silly and had an amazing laugh when we got together. She use to love my loud laugh too.

Alison was so living n so sweet n so kind. Everytime we spoke she always spoke of her son Liam and how proud she was of him.

My sweetest friend..... I will miss you always n forever. I am beyond grateful to have met u when I did. words can't ever express how much I will miss you. I think about u daily. Even when we lost touch thru out the yrs we always found a way back to one another again.

Love you girlie

“ Beautiful daughter of mine. I miss your voice, your laugh, your smile. You were a bright light, and will continue to be a bright star in the night sky shining down to let us know you are still with us. You never hesitated to say "I love you" and your affection will forever be treasured. God Bless You. All my love, mom

“ Alison was the reason I kept purchasing bikes from Patriot H-D. She made it painless and fun. She had an infectious personality and made PHD a wonderful place to hang out. Our sympathies and love to Dan, Liam and the rest of her family.

“ I will never forget the first time I met Alison -- we worked together at Harley Davidson -- she pranced in wearing sky-high heels and would come to work daily wearing those heels so high -- I remember saying to her that I didn't see how in the world she could wear heels that high, let alone work all day in them. She just giggled and said "I love my heels!" She was such a great person and the world is a bit sadder with her passing. My condolences to Dan, Liam and the rest of her family.
