“ Anne was a gracious and kind-hearted woman of faith. I am grateful to have known her. On one occasion, I had been praying for guidance in dealing with a very difficult problem in my life. At church that Sunday, Anne approached me and said, "I feel like I need to tell you this . . ." She had no idea of the challenge I was dealing with and no awareness of my prayers to God for guidance, but she listened to the Holy Ghost when it prompted her, thereby serving as God's messenger in my life that day. She gave me the very answer I had been seeking. I love you, Anne! You are missed!

“ Anne was a Dimond cousin, and we enjoyed our visits with her over the years. When our grandson was born in 2017 she made him a cherished baby quilt, and then she met him a few months later (photo). Our condolences to Susan, Mary Clare and the rest of the family. -- Jim Reilly & Sabah Ghazzawi, Toronto

“ Anne and Larry were well-loved and respected members of our Oakton Ward family. Anne lovingly cared for Larry when he sustained a terrible injury in the home. She looked after him for many months and when Larry struggled both physically and mentally, her great love for him sustained her through a very painful loss of the man she knew Larry to be.

Anne's talents in quilting were legendary. She made beautiful modern quilts which adorned our Relief Society podium month after month. It was the construction of these stunning creations that contributed to my own life-long love of the endless variety and beauty of quilting. Her example to me of the proverb that you can teach an old dog new tricks, served to encourage me to take up the hobby again. I will always be grateful to Anne's example to me as I embraced quilting again from seeing her beautiful, table-sized quilts.

Anne was also very generous with her talent. When a young couple moved into our Oakton Ward, they were expecting twins. The women in the ward wanted to help them prepare for these babies and a baby shower was planned at the church. Anne created two, show-stopper baby quilts for this perfect stranger. Her generosity of time and resources defined the heart and generosity of a wonderful sister that has left her mark upon my heart forever and for which she will always be remembered by many.

Scott and I send our deepest condolences to our forever friend. May God bless your family at this most difficult time.
