“ I remember the good advice Brian gave me. I said to him life is boring, he told me boring is good. I felt better.

I remember, we were talking about women. He told me you need only 1 good woman. I felt better.

One time we were talking about customers. He told me everybody is crazy. I felt better.

I remember his yellow Hummer and the time he was building out the Atlas Walk shop. I watched in amazement.

I remember his dirty jokes that started off innocent and turned dirty. Over the years, I understood how the beginnings and endings were both dirty. I am still laughing.

I remember the times we went golfing. He had a lot of patience, he was a good teacher. I am still swinging. One time he told me that my stomach got in the way of my swing. I have been trying to lose my stomach ever since.

I remember the times I ate dinner over his house. Ms. Aurillo is a good cook and very generous. I am always hungry when I visit.

Michael and Henry his sons are good people. He will live through them. He will never be forgotten.

I wish the family the very best,
