“ Nana, I sure am going to miss you, you were a wonderful person and a great grandma, you would give the shirt off you back to someone if they needed it. I love you with all of my heart, and will cherish the memories we had together forever. But I know you are in good hands now free from pain and someday I will see you again! (You're my special angel watching over me now)

“ Until Saturday, we had not had the privelage of meeting Mrs. Smith; in the short time that we spent in the hospital room, her faith was immediately made known. When asked if we could have prayer with her, she raised her weak hand, and Roger held it and had prayer with her. She squeezed his hand during prayer time, and let go when finished. Her life seemed to be the same. She squeezed the joy of life with those who surrounded her... and she was very aware of her surroundings, and when God made preparation for her transition, she let go of this life, said good-bye to those she dearly loved, and walked into the presence of the Lord. That is a testimony that speaks for itself.
