“ Most of us are familiar with the disease Alzheimers. We all know It's something Mother had. There is something to be said about how my mother lived her life in her last days. Although it's a horrible disease to many, sometimes I think it was a gift to her. Mother started each day brand new. Her mood was always happy and her attitude was positive. It brightened her day to see you, and she laughed all the time. She never looked at herself as sick or old or even complain. If there is something to be taken from this, a lesson to be learned, then it should be this. We all should have such a positive look at life as she did. We should all start each day brand new. Forget yesterday, focus on the day, not worry about tomorrow. Love one another and most of all forgive. Mother lived her life to the fullest, with all her heart, and with Love. Not a day went by without her hugging me and telling me she loved me, I was her sweet baby. I will miss this most. I am proud that she was my mother, and what a mother she was for she mothered me till the end.

*Beautifully said, she was a Joy to work for and you are a blessed daughter to care for her. Its not easy being the care giver and loved one but you rose to the occations. Its never perfect but you said, Yes, and thats all a mother can ask for in a child. She did well in raising you and she will be greatly missed.
But what a blessing she was to many while she was here.*

God bless you and your family as you grieve for her loss and rejoice in the gift of her life!

I can remember when you all would come in and we would go up to aunt Minnie's to see everyone. she was also all smiles then too. she and ross would talk slow for me so that I could understand them and then I would sign back the best that I could, but I would be so nervous doing that. thanks Brenda for sharing all the pictures of her on here with you. I loved her a lot. love you all. rest in peace ms faye. give everyone in heaven hugs for me.
