“ My drive home afforded a welcome time to reflect on Gil's life and our good-bye weekend. I think we gave him a great send-off, and I came home with a renewed sense of connectnedness and appreciation for our family and our heritage.

What struck me was hearing so many people describe their relationship with Gil as "special"; that is certainly the case for me. Even people who had known him only briefly felt like they had known him all their lives.

We will miss him.
