“ Uncle Gordan was an amazing man. When I was little, he used to call the house, and whenever I answered the phone, he'd pretend to be Cookie Monster. I remember when Granda Sieg died, we got so many pound cakes, it wasn't funny. He taught me to slice them, toast the slices int the toaster oven, and put just a little bit of butter on them. Something I still do with pound cake today! He was strong, and yet could be very gentle. Well spoken and very intelligent. I loved to hear his stories, especially ones about he and my dad when they were younger. He had a passion for God and his family. I love him a lot and he'll always have a special place in my heart.
