“ *Dear Kellie & Randal,
I just wanted to let you know, on behalf of myself & the other families at Braemar Dance Center that we are grieving with you. We will say a prayer for each of you as you each are grieving the loss of your beloved son and brother. I believe Jimmy is in heaven with God, playing with all of his favorite things on streets of gold. You will be together again. Until then, I know you will always miss him, and for that we cry with you.*

Sincerely,

“ Dear Barnette & Andrews family, here is a saying that mat comfort you. His Journey's Just Begun.
don't think of him as gone away..his journey's just begun,life holds so many facets..this earth is only one.Just think of him as resting
.And think of him as living as living in the hearts of those he touched..for nothing loved is ever lost..
i can only express my families deep sympathy on all of your lost.
As I have recently lost my Father and find comfort in reading all the obituaries. my prayers are with you. The Scialdone family

“ I am very sorry for your loss. I have experienced losses both anticipated and unexpected. When I was fifteen years old in my first year in high school, my mother died of melanoma at age 54 in December 2004; we were anticipating the loss. As with me, I am sure your loss is emotionally stressful for you and your family.

Your grief may ebb and flow. It has been said that each of us has this well deep inside of us that can be filled to the brim with grief. Every time we cry, we empty out some of the well. But the well fills again. The level of sorrow in your well may lessen as time passes, but it will never run dry. There will always be birthdays, anniversaries, holidays, and those days when the well seems to fill to its brim again. Allow yourself time to remember and mourn. It is part of your healing. Grief is a continuing journey.
