“ Jim and family: I am sorry I was not able to arrive on time to see you today. I've been spending a lot of time going through old photographs and reminiscing about happier times. There were some great ones. Like the time we went up to the Omega Institute in Rhinebeck, NY, to "rescue" Bronwyn. Or, the first time we got to see POTUS and FLOTUS frolicking in the Christmas gift wrapping paper. Or the weekend of Rob and Kristen Culp's wedding. Many more. I wish peace for you, Jim, and for your family. Maybe it would have helped me to share my grief with you, but I really am having trouble wrapping my head around this.

“ Jim's warmth and quick wit are among my very fondest memories of my years at Georgetown.

“ Jim was a friend and colleague at Georgetown. He was the first person I knew who did Civil War reenacting. He loved to share stories from the battlefields and his knowledge of history. Once he knew I had a sewing machine, and knew how to use it, I was often called upon to patch up his reenactment britches. It got to be a challenge after a while, with patches being sewn to patches – and it got to be funny when Jim would bring them in and ask if I could fix them.....again.

I will remember Jim fondly; I know he will be greatly missed. Today would have been his birthday – Happy Birthday Jim!

Amanda sewed his britches and I used to trim his hair and sideburns for the re-enactments. It took a village to get him ready.

“ We all are very devastated by the loss of my Uncle and in this difficult time we need to remember all the amazing things about him. Such as his passion for history and visiting any battlefields that he came across, knowing the natural history museum in D.C. like the back of his hand, his talent for photography and his devotion in sharing this knowledge.

He is most certainly one of the most intelligent people I have ever met.

There are so many great memories too many to list. My Uncle Jim was amazing person who loved his family very much. He will be greatly missed and words no word express that. He was a very lucky man who had amazing siblings Robert, Lynn, Todd and his baby brother Shane. He was predeceased by his father Bobbi Levi Jones in June of 2002.
