

Jason Alexander Bailey

February 21, 1995 - April 26, 2019

Did you know Jason? That amazing infectious smile. Did you know Jason? A laugh that could fill 1000 rooms. Did you know Jason? Has he held open a door for you? Did you know Jason? Every hug imprinting his love on your heart. Did you know his heart of gold? He'd give you his coat, his shirt, and even his left shoe. Did you know he had a deep desire to help broken people too? Did you know Jason? Handsome with olive skin and a huge wet kiss. Did you know Jason? 24 years young. I know Jason, because he's my son.

Mama loves you Jason. Rest In Peace until I see you again.

“ Mrs. Bailey, Jason was like my second son when Austen, Matias and Bryan were in high school. I remember my last conversation with him when we were working in DC with Floyd tearing old air conditioners apart. We were taking a break and I told him, make something of your life. Stay away from drugs you are so much better than that. Now his battle is over and he is in peace. My heartfelt condolences go out to you. I can't imagine the pain of burying a child. Only his body is gone his spirit will be right there whenever you need him

“ Jason, you will always be remembered and forever with us. I remember the little boy full of laughter and play. I remember your inquisitive mind....always thinking. I remember your high level of intelligence. I remember your talents. I remember the "little man" who was a football superstar. I remember your mild manors and chivalry. I remember observing you and your grandfather interact. Your grandparents were so proud of you. I remember holidays in North Carolina....lots of food, music and laughter and in the loft as I could over hear you and Miss Majesty. I am overwhelmed with sadness, but I know you are in the best hands now, and as difficult as it is for all who loved you, you are released now. Free. I remember YOU. Rest In Heavenly Peace, amen.
