“ I worked with "Jenn" at AT&T Legal. She and I had a friendship that spanned years and years. Adrianna was in diapers and sat on her lap at a company-sponsored baseball game. We went line dancing on the weekends until she met John. I helped her pick out her wedding dress and was her maid of honor. When JR came along, my daughter baby sat him for "community service credits" for school. I cried when she left California and again when they later sold the house after deciding they weren't coming back. In looking at her Facebook page, I mistook Adrianna for Jennifer. Of course, she never aged in my eyes, and Adrianna ended up looking so much like her mom! I'm so glad she got to go to chef school (she was fiercely competitive all her life) but never got the chance to talk to her about it. I'm so sad I didn't take the chance to reconnect like I should have. I never knew the clock was ticking. Mom and Dad, John and kids - I am so sorry for your loss. Thank you for sharing her with me for the short years we had her. I will always cherish those memories.

“ Jenn, from that 1st day in Culinary school. You, Chris and I stuck to each other like glue. I miss seeing your face light up when you had an idea for a sauce or a dish and would get right down to working on it. I see this face often in my head whenever I think about a dish to prepare. You are missed my friend, you have no idea how much. I still have the Anthony Bourdain book you gave me and cherish it, it actually sits with all of my cookbooks. Rest Easy Chef! BBCF!

“ She and I were the only redheads with blue eyes. Jennifer was sweet, funny, kind, resilient, and sensitive. She had a way of making people feel special; everyone in middle school and high school loved her. I always wished I could be as pretty and smart as her. GOD gained an angel.

“ So many adventures that I keep remembering with Jennifer through high school and BCCC. Never a dull moment when hanging with her. Driving around in the red Probe with the music blasting. Times spent at the lake including jumping from that bridge into the lake. I always loved swimming in her pool or hanging in her basement. Always hoped we would be able to catch up in person again someday. So sorry that you are gone so soon. The family is in my prayers.

“ I have so many wonderful memories of Jennifer, growing up together in El Dorado. She was strong and funny, and I know she must've continued those traits into her adult life. I'm so sorry for your loss.
