“ Uncle Jack gave my husband Dave and me a tour at the Smithsonian when we were visiting my parents. He showed us some exhibits he had worked on and took us behind the scenes. He showed us an artwork he had worked on that won a prize. He and his coworkers had put a canvas behind their paint shaker and entered the paint splattered result into a competition. While that may not have been the work he was proudest of, he sure enjoyed showing it off to us.

“ A memory of my dad. January 2010 in Maui, HI. we were driving the road to Hana.

We stopped at a scenic overlook. Dad went exploring. Standing in front of a sign that said,

No trespassing, do not pick coconuts. He picked coconuts.

Coincidentally, the monthly test of the tsunami siren occurred. Dad ran

Like the catholic school nuns were after him.

He fell down and got bloody knees. And yes,

He got those coconuts. Love you Pops. Jacky.

My kids all loved their great uncle Jack. Especially Jake. He gave us several fond memories. One in particular was during a vacation with them at Nagshead and Uncle Jack was boiling blue crabs. The kids were all playing around him and one of the crabs got away and sent the kids running for their lives. It was hilarious.

We just met Jack on 6/30/18, when his beautiful daughter (Dottie) married our handsome son (Bob). It was such a blessing that God gave you the strength to attend their wedding, it meant all the world to your daughter. Our son will always love and take care of your daughter. I pray that God be with your family and help them through the loss of their loved one. RIP Jack!
