“ My thoughts and deepest sympathy are with you all. Kev was like a brother to me, being one of my closest friends during a period in my life when people came and went much too quickly. He was one of the most honest, loyal and generous people I knew. He had a great sense of humor (and once I knew his mother I knew where he got it from). He was a practical joker that loved to surprise people, especially people like me who always gave him a good reaction (or a threatened butt kicking-). He will never be gone, he will never be forgotten and he will always be missed.

“ I went to the viewing on Sunday, and didn't realize how much I'd miss him until I saw him. It's hard to believe that Kevin's not here anymore. The whole time I was at the viewing, I almost expected him to walk in the room, and say, "Hey! What's goin' on?!"

Before my parents and I left, I took one last look at Kevin, and saw his mother standing over him, and she said, "Bye Kevin. I'll see you tomorrow."

I'll never forget. We love you, Kev!
