“ Remembering you in prayer!

Irish Poem from a Carmelite Monastery in Ireland

*"Death is nothing at all---I have only slipped into the next room.
Whatever we were to each other, that we are still.
Call me by my old familiar name, speak to me in that easy way which you always used.
Laugh as we always laughed together.
Play, smile, think of me; pray for me.
Let my name be the household word it always was.
Let it be spoken without effort.
Life means all that it ever meant.
It is the same as it ever was; there is absolutely unbroken continuity.
Why should I be out of your mind because I am out of your sight?
I am but waiting for you, for an interval, somewhere very near just around the corner.
All is well. Nothing is past; nothing is lost.
One brief moment and all will be as it was before--only better, infinitely happier and forever....."*

“ Love you, Liz, I'm sure going to miss you!

I'm Standing Right Next To You

*You can't see me or touch me
but I'm standing right next to you.
It's sad to see you cry for me
I wish you only knew.*

*I'm standing right next to you.
Even though you think I'm gone,
I've really never left your side
I've been here all along.*

*So please be brave and dry the tears,
don't let your grief show through.
I love you from a different place,
and I'm standing right next to you.*

“ My heart aches. I met Liz back in 1995 when I was 16 and had just joined GMVRS as a junior member. Liz was a fixture at the rescue squad, and tagging along with her was James whom we all knew was destined to go into fire and rescue. Liz always had a smile and a kind word. I can still picture her and Elsie playing Bingo at the Rescue Squad on Friday's and at the Firehouse on Saturday's. As the years moved on I kept in touch with Liz. She was a wonderful friend to me. I will miss her strong gentle hugs and her kindness. No matter what happened in my life Liz never judged, and she always encouraged me. As sad as I am that she is gone, I am happy to know she has been reunited at long last with her husband. I know she missed her best friend Elsie these last few months and she's happy to be back with her. I will miss you always Liz, I love you.
