“ I met Shirley when we went to nursing school with me. She was the most honest, caring person I have ever met. When she wanted to say something but wouldn't, she would give the cutest little grin. When asked what she was grinning at she would just shrug and say, aw nothing and then giggle. I have not seen her since I moved to Wa state for 12 years and now in Tn. I had been trying to find her on Facebook once we came back east. Just hooked up with her a couple months ago. Even though we were not in touch for so long, I never forgot her name and how wonderful a person she was. Even back then she loved her children more than life itself.
