“ To our friend Tiger - Thanks for all the wonderful memories starting with Pageland Lane and the infamous hot spot dew drop the view; just a few of the names we called Parkview (our second home). There are so many memories beginning as kids and into adulthood that makes us family. You were the brother that our brother Jay never had. He used to joke to everyone that Betty loved you more than him (the second son). P.S. Jay says he will see you there. So rest in peace, love and prayers to all the Robey's. Love always - Betty, Patty, Jay, Penny, Chris and Carrie.

“ RIP My dear little buddy, you were so loved by all, and such a wonderful down to earth man. I'll never forget you, and never forget the first time Bill brought me to Virginia, and I met you and your wonderful family. You and Randy little stair step, toe head, darling little boys, and so frendly and and funny. Your whole family made me feel like I'd known them all my life, that first time. Bill had always talked about the Robey family, he'd grown up with. All of you will remain in our hearts, our thoughts and our prayers. As soon as Beckie told me about your passing Tiger, the songs Jeremiah Was a Bull Frog, and I Love This Bar, started playing in my head. A couple of your favorite songs, when you were small, and then your favorite song, the last time you were down here for a visit. So I felt you finally got to come back for a little visit, before going on to be with Sam. We love you and the whole Robey famlily. God Bless

“ I wanted so badly to get up and say this at the service this morning, but I am a chicken and was scared to get up in front of a bunch of strangers. I kept telling myself, "Tiger wouldn't have been scared to get up and talk!" He was never shy about telling you exactly what he was thinking. :) My friend Paul & I took that picture of Tiger in front of the hoe with the dirt steps he'd built when we were doing a job at GMU in Fairfax. That job was a total nightmare, but one thing I always knew was that with Tiger on the hoe, things would be done right - and safely. He was always the first one on the job in the morning, and almost always had something funny or smart-ass to say to make you laugh right off the bat. The only time I ever remember seeing him in a bad mood would be Monday morning right after the Steelers had lost. But by lunchtime he was usually back to his old self. :) Anyway, that picture of Tiger & his dirt steps - he was up on a pile loading out trucks, and had to keep getting out to deal with the trucks and other stuff, and we ALL hated climbing up and down that pile. So finally there was a lull between trucks, and he built himself those steps. When I heard of Tiger's passing earlier this week, that picture was the first thing I thought of. It's just so the Tiger I knew - his smile, the humor and pride involved with building those steps, it's just perfect. He was loved and will most certainly be missed.
